GUNS ROAR ON MINGO BATTLE FRONT

FEDERAL TROOPS READY FOR FIGHT; MARTIAL LAW DUE

6,000 STRIKING MINERS BATTLE STATE POLICE, DEPUTY SHERIFFS, AND VOLUNTEER CITIZENS

(By Associated Press)

Washington.—A federal report at noon stated that four thousand troops from four camps were either en route or in readiness to move to West Virginia to enforce the government's decision to restore order in the coal fields. The proclamation of martial law is being held up pending the arrival of troops at their destination.

Logan, W. Va.—It was officially announced at noon today that "heavy firing" was taking place at Blair, and casualties are being reported. A courier stated that the "front" was one "continual roar along the entire line," which was reported to extend for twenty miles.

Washington, Sept. 2—The first three trains carrying the Twenty-sixth infantry to West Virginia left here at 9:45 this morning.

Orders for the immediate entrainment of troops for the strike zone were issued early today. Action on the proclamation declaring martial law was temporarily postponed pending a conference with the president by Secretary Weeks and other government officials. The proclamation is signed and needs only issuance to become effective.

The order for the entrainment of troops was issued following a report on the situation by General Bandholtz, who was sent by Secretary Weeks to make an investigation. The general recommended last night that troops be sent at once. They will be under his command.

Battle Rages

Within the Miners' Lines, Madison, W. Va.—Five miners are reported killed or badly wounded in renewed fighting at Blair this morning. The defront by two, both wounded. The detachment is said to have attacked a machine gun nest on Blair mountain.

The entire force, with the exception of the two making the report, is said to have been wiped out or taken prisoner.

Reports have reached Sheriff A. C. Pinson of Mingo county from the Logan-Boone county border, where a furious battle raged all day Wednesday between 6,000 armed striking miners and deputy sheriffs, state police and volunteer citizens, that as many as 5 men were killed in yesterday's fighting.

Fighting between the Logan county defenders under Sheriff Don Chafin and the armed striking miners who are attempting to march through this county, was continuing this morning and reports of the battle are distinctly audible here, state police said.

Barrage Laid

Machine gun barrages were laid down on miners' positions at 4 a. m. today by the Logan army of defense.

The military authorities at 9:30 a. m. said sniping had again started at Crooked Creek and at Blair mountain.

Logan county authorities are praying for the arrival of federal troops.

A general attack by miners now means a fearful slaughter, it was openly predicted.

MARCONI GOT MESSAGE FROM MARS, HE SAYS

New York, Sept. 2—J. C. H. Macbeth, London manager of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company, Ltd., startled members of the Rotary club of New York today at a luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin by the announcement that Sig. Marconi believed he had intercepted messages from Mars.

The wireless inventor, he said, while making a series of atmospheric experiments aboard his yacht Electra, in the Mediterranean, several months ago, discovered wireless wave lengths far in excess of those used by the highest powered radio stations in the world. These led him and other wireless experts to believe Mars or some other planet was trying to communicate with the earth.

Macbeth declares the maximum length of waves produced in the world today was 14,000 meters. He said the ones picked up by Marconi have been found to be about 150,000 meters. He said their regularity disproved any belief that they are produced by electrical disturbances, and the only resemblance to the code used on this planet is in the letter "V" used in the international code.

CONSOLIDATED CO. APPEALS $14000 DAMAGE AWARD

COMMISSIONERS ESTIMATE OF DAMAGE TO FLOODED LANDS ALLEGED EXORBITANT

The Consolidated company, through its attorney, T. W. Brazeau, has appealed the decision of circuit court commissioners awarding $14,000 to Bernard Galecki, town of Plover, for alleged damage to his land resulting from the raising of the water of the river by the Consolidated dam at Biron. The appeal to the circuit court of Portage county, which will be heard next December, alleges that the amount awarded is grossly excessive. The acreage affected was overestimated by the commissioners, Mr. Brazeau states, and the rate of award, $70 per acre, is almost double that of the just amount.

The $14,000 award was made at a meeting of commissioners George H. Altenburg, Stevens Point, Frank Guyant, Belmont, and M. O'Keefe, Arnott, who were appointed by the circuit court to appraise the damages resulting to farming lands along the river. The meeting was held at Stevens Point, Wednesday.

Galecki's Claim Largest

According to the facts, as brought out before the commisisoners, the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Company flooded the lands above Biron when the dam was raised, causing the loss of lands to the many owners, the value of which was to be determined by the commissioners appointed by the court. The claim of Bernard Galecki was the largest brought before the commissioners as it was said to involve 200 acres of real estate along the south bank of the river in the town of Plover. After listening to the arguments the commisisoners awarded Galecki damages amounting to $14,000, or at the rate of $70 per acre.

Many other claims against the company have been adjusted in the past few months, most of them at an average rate of $40 per acre.

To Bury Young Hero With Military Honors

PARENTS OF GORDON CURTIS BARBER ARRIVE FROM MOSINEE TO MEET BODY OF SON KILLED IN ACTION

The remains of Gordon Curtis Barber, 18-year old marine, killed in action at Chateau Thierry on June 10, 1918, arrived in this city this morning, and were met at the St. Paul station by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barber, of Mosinee.

The body was taken from Ragan's undertaking parlors at 2 o'clock this afternoon to the Episcopal church where it lies in state awaiting burial. A military funeral will be conducted tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, from the Episcopal church, with the local post of the American legion in charge. Services will be held by the Rev. Father Rutan, of Mosinee, assisted by Father Rockstroh. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery. The Legion will furnish a firing squad, pall bearers, and bugler.

Arrive in U. S. August 20.

The body of the young hero arrived at Hoboken on the transport Wheaton on August 20, and was among those threatened with cremation by a fire at the docks there. Doubt as to his identity after the arrival of the telegram announcing the shipment of the remains to this city was cleared when Mr. and Mrs. Barber arrived in the city last night from Mosinee, in response to a wire received there. They are staying with Mrs. Barber's sister, Mrs. W. J. Berard, Washington avenue.

Born in Merrill August 16, 1899, Gordon Curtis Barber lived for a year in Wisconsin Rapids and attended school here. He enlisted in Milwaukee with the Fighting Fifth marines in February, 1917, when he was only 17 years old. Serving with the Eighteenth company of the famous regiment of Devil-Dogs, he sailed for France at the end of July, and saw service with his outfit at Verdun, Champaign, and Toul.

Died Fighting.

When the big German push threatened Paris in June, 1918, the Second division was called to fill the dangerous gap in the French lines. Gordon Barber went over the top with his company on June 10, and was one of the many who didn't come back, falling with his face to the foe.

He was the first Marine enlisting in Milwaukee to be killed in action, and a Milwaukee Legion post is named in his memory. A marine comrade of his is expected here tonight to represent the Gordon Curtis Barber Post of Milwaukee at the funeral.

Estimate Nepco Fire Damage At $150,000

8,000 CORDS OF PEELED HEMLOCK LOGS DESTROYED ACCORDING TO UNOFFICIAL ESTIMATE; HOMES SUFFERED DAMAGE

According to unofficial estimates the loss sustained in the big Nepco yard fire was placed at $150,000, the estimate being based on the market value of approximately 8,000 cords of peeled hemlock logs that were consumed by the fire All of the logs in the south section of the yard were consumed with the exception of the three last piles at the extreme east end and it is doubtful if even these logs will be of any value in the manufacturing of pulp owing to the fact that they were badly charred.

Nepco To Face Loss

Work on the removal of all traces of the disastrous fire will be commenced after the adjustment with the insurance company is made. Although the wood consumed in the fire is covered by insurance the company stands to face considerable loss in time lost in paper manufacture as the mill was closed until seven o'clock this morning. All shifts were put to work controlling the flames which caused a complete shutdown of the mill from two o'cock Thursday until seven this morning.

Make Record Run

The fire was first discovered by the switch engine crew and at the time of discovery only covered the ends of a few logs. The fire alarm was sent in and by the time the company's hose began playing on the fire it had spread to another pile. Mill officials saw that help was needed, owing to the wind, and sent calls to the Nekoosa, Wisconsin Rapids and Marshfield fire departments which arrived in the order named, the Marshfield company making the 38 mile run in one hour and four minutes. The Stevens Point fire department was also called but returned to their city owing to a fire there.

Little headway in checking flames was made until the arrival of the local truck which soon had three lines of hose pouring water on the flames. Owing to the intense heat the fire fighters had to be protected by wet canvasses which enabled them to get in close proximity to the flames.

Frank Noel Home Damaged

Work in extinguishing the fire in the yards was further handicapped by several fires in the village. The homes of Frank Noel, Mrs. R. W. Cahill, J. Vechinsky, Emil Wendland, W. Burton and W. Olschlager and the town hall were all set afire from falling embers. The home of Frank Noel suffered the most damage as it was necessary to pour considerable water in order to extinguish the flames which had made considerable headway before being discovered.

CONSOLIDATED CO. APPEALS $14000 DAMAGE AWARD

COMMISSIONERS ESTIMATE OF DAMAGE TO FLOODED LANDS ALLEGED EXORBITANT

The Consolidated company, through its attorney, T. W. Brazeau, has appealed the decision of circuit court commissioners awarding $14,000 to Bernard Galecki, town of Plover, for alleged damage to his land resulting from the raising of the water of the river by the Consolidated dam at Biron. The appeal to the circuit court of Portage county, which will be heard next December, alleges that the amount awarded is grossly excessive. The acreage affected was overestimated by the commissioners, Mr. Brazeau states, and the rate of award, $70 per acre, is almost double that of the just amount.

The $14,000 award was made at a meeting of commissioners George H. Altenburg, Stevens Point, Frank Juyant, Belmont, and M. O'Keefe, Arnott, who were appointed by the circuit court to appraise the damages resulting to farming lands along the river. The meeting was held at Stevens Point, Wednesday.

Galecki's Claim Largest

According to the facts, as brought out before the commisisoners, the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Company flooded the lands above Biron when the dam was raised, causing the loss of lands to the many owners, the value of which was to be determined by the commissioners appointed by the court. The claim of Bernard Galecki was the largest brought before the commissioners as it was said to involve 200 acres of real estate along the south bank of the river in the town of Plover. After listening to the arguments the commisisoners awarded Galecki damages amounting to $14,000, or at the rate of $70 per acre.

Many other claims against the company have been adjusted in the past few months, most of them at an average rate of $40 per acre.

William and Kenneth Reading, and Lowell Bidwell, all of Stevens Point, convicted for attempting to loot a freight car on the Soo line at Auburndale, are being grilled this afternoon by the Soo line detectives in an attempt to secure a confession. The story of the offenders will determine whether or not their sentences will stand or whether they will be paroled. William Reading drew a 2-year term at Green Bay, while the other two were sentenced for a year and a half.

Estimate Nepco Fire Damage At $150,000

8,000 CORDS OF PEELED HEMLOCK LOGS DESTROYED ACCORDING TO UNOFFICIAL ESTIMATE; 7 HOMES SUFFERED DAMAGE

According to unofficial estimates the loss sustained in the big Nepco yard fire was placed at $150,000, the estimate being based on the market value of approximately 8,000 cords of peeled hemlock logs that were consumed by the fire. All of the logs in the south section of the yard were consumed with the exception of the three last piles at the extreme east end and it is doubtful if even these logs will be of any value in the manufacturing of pulp owing to the fact that they were badly charred.

Nepco To Face Loss

Work on the removal of all traces of the disastrous fire will be commenced after the adjustment with the insurance company is made. Although the wood consumed in the fire is covered by insurance the company stands to face considerable loss in time lost in paper manufacture as the mill was closed until seven o'clock this morning. All shifts were put to work controlling the flames which caused a complete shutdown of the mill from two o'cock Thursday until seven this morning.

Make Record Run

The fire was first discovered by the switch engine crew and at the time of discovery only covered the ends of a few logs. The fire alarm was sent in and by the time the company's hose began playing on the fire it had spread to another pile. Mill officials saw that help was needed, owing to the wind, and sent calls to the Nekoosa, Wisconsin Rapids and Marshfield fire departments which arrived in the order named, the Marshfield company making the 38 mile run in one hour and four minutes. The Stevens Point fire department was also called but returned to their city owing to a fire there.

Little headway in checking flames was made until the arrival of the local truck which soon had three lines of hose pouring water on the flames. Owing to the intense heat the fire fighters had to be protected by wet canvasses which enabed them to get in close proximity to the flames.

Frank Noel Home Damaged

Work in extinguishing the fire in the yards was further handicapped by several fires in the village. The homes of Frank Noel, Mrs. R. W. Cahill, L. Vechinsky, Emil Wendland, W. Burton and W. Oilschlager and the town hall were all set afire from falling embers. The home of Frank Noel suffered the most damage as it was necessary to pour considerable water in order to extinguish the flames which had made considerable headway before being discovered.

FAMILY BATTLES BANDITS; 1 DEAD

(By Associated Press).

Milwaukee, Sept. 2—Mrs. Sophie Hoyer, 43 years old was shot to death her husband was probably fatally wounded, and their daughter, Emily had her arm shot off early today when the family resisted four armed men who attempted to rob the Hoyer farm eighteen miles north of the city.

The four robbers, armed with pistols, appeared at the Hoyer home and threatening the family, attempted to ransack the house for valuables. Mrs Hoyer, who understands little English failed to obey the command to throw up her hands, whereupon one of the bandits fired, killing her almost instantly. Mr. Hoyer, in the confusion which followed, attempted to resist further attack by grappling with one of the assailants. More firing ensued and the bandits escaped after wounding him severely and shooting the daughter in the arm.

The sheriff was notified, and an armed posse of two hundred is searching the countryside for the gunmen.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old spinster—but never too old to think of marriage—with more money than brains, is inveigled by a strong-minded spinster, Miss Hughesby-Browne, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leonard island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel engaged for the hunt, and in the confusion is unwittingly carried along.

CHAPTER II.—By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane, and is somewhat impressed.

CHAPTER III.—Talking with Dugald Shaw, the leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady adventurer, Hiram H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Miss Jane Harding. Their relations, naturally, are somewhat strained.

CHAPTER IV.—Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty, Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane, to her disquietude. The building, however, is soundly effected.

CHAPTER V.—Led by Miss Hughesby-Browne, the party draws up an agreement whereby Virginia Harding is barred from participation in the profits of the expedition. Believing the whole thing to be a fraud, Virginia is not greatly worried. Cuthbert Vane alone votes against the exclusion of Virginia.

CHAPTER VI.—Wild pigs abound on the island, and "Cookie," the colored member of the party, insists he has seen a "giant," in the form of a white pig. During a walk Virginia meets the "giant," a white bull terrier, and proudly brings him into camp.

CHAPTER VII.—On the island is the hut of a copra gatherer, and the presence of the dog, named "Crusoe," by Virginia, is thus accounted for. Rambling on, and feeling herself not to be a popular member of the expedition, Virginia gets upon a sand-imbedded sloop, the Island Queen. Returning to the camp, she is intercepted by Captain Magnus, who accosts her unpleasantly. She escapes him with the aid of "Crusoe."

CHAPTER VIII.—Fired with the idea of herself discovering the treasure, Virginia pays a visit to the cave which has been singled out as the most likely place in which it has been concealed, but there she is caught by the tide and rescued by Dugald Shaw, from certain death. Thinking her unconscious, Shaw whispers words of endearment, which she treasures.

CHAPTER IX.—In idle curiosity Virginia, dabbling about the wreck of the Island Queen, finds a diary, purported only as having been kept by "Peter," a former seeker of the treasure. In it he tells of his finding of the hidden wealth and there her reading is interrupted.

CHAPTER X.—Opinions as to the proper methods of prosecuting the search for the treasure are divided, and a wide difference is apparent in the councils of the little party. Virginia's interest in the leader of the expedition increases.

Brought back to earth and sanity, I rose and began to consider my surroundings. Somewhere close at hand was the mouth of the cave—but where? The cliffs, as I have already said, were too steep for descent. Nothing but a fly could have crawled down them. I turned to the sea-ward face of the peninsula. There, surely, must be the entrance to the cave! For hours I clambered among the rocks, risking manold limbs and sunstroke—and found no entrance. I came back at last, heavily, to the camp. There lay the dust of the [illegible] had known all—and a [illegible] came to me to tear away the [illegible] with my bare hands, to dig down, deep—and then with listening ears for a whispered word.

"I put the delirious fancy from me and moved away to the edge of the cliffs. Looking down, I saw a narrow sloping shelf which dropped to the brink to a distance of ten or twelve feet below, where it met a slight projection of the rock. I had seen it before, of course, but it had carried no significance for my mind. Now I stepped down upon the ledge and followed it to its end in the angle of the rock.

"I left the cave and hurried back to [illegible] working on my [illegible] of sand the [illegible] of the sea, where the breeze only the high drift rising of the wind, or the eternal moan of the sea.

"There in the cave, I set to work feverishly, pushing the Halt sand fly. At the end of half an hour, at a point close to the frame of the wall my spade struck hard surface. It lay, I should guess, under about two feet of sand. Such I had laid bare a patch of dark wood which ran under my shovel almost like iron. A little more, and I had cleared away the sand from the top of a large chest with a curved lid, heavily bound in bands.

"Feverishly I flung the sand aside till the chest stood free for half its depth—and it is roughly three feet. It has handles at the ends, great hand-wrought hoops of metal. I tugged my utmost, but the chest seemed fast in its place as the native rock. I hammered exultantly. The weight meant gold—gold! I had hammer and chisel with me, and with these I forced the treasure-laden locks. There were three of them, one for each strip of brass which bound the chest. Then I flung up the lid.

"No glittering treasure dazzled me. I saw only a surface of stained canvas. I lifted carefully around the chest. This I tore off and flung aside—calling to Benjy, who was a most interested spectator of my strange new efforts. Still no gleam of gold—only rough rows of plump bags. With both hands I [illegible] them. Oh, to grasp them! [illegible] with two, he other hog [illegible] so [illegible]

"I spread the square of canvas on the sand, cut the strings from the bags and poured out—gold, gold! All full of gold pieces they were, and a few dirty silver pieces among them! And [illegible] as they fell in a glorious golden rain [illegible]

"[illegible] I sat there. [illegible] the coins [illegible] Benjy [illegible] at pieces indifferently made to [illegible] my fingers and [illegible] as with words, 'Come, hunt pig!'

"'Benjy,' I said, 'we'll leave the pork alone just now. We have work enough to count our money. We're rich, old boy, rich, rich!'

"Of course, I don't yet know exactly what the value of the treasure is. I have counted the bars in the chest; there are one hundred and forty-eight. Each, so far as I have determined, contains one thousand doubloons, which makes a total of one hundred and forty-eight thousand. Estimating each coin, for the sake of even figures, at a value of seven dollars—a safe minimum—you get one million, thirty-six thousand dollars. And as many of the coins are ancient I ought to reap a harvest from collectors.

"Besides the coin, I found, rather surprisingly, laid between the upper layers of bags, a silver crucifix about nine inches long. It is of very quaint old workmanship, and badly tarnished. Its money value must be very trifling, compared to the same bulk of golden coins. I think it must have had some special character of sacredness which led to its preservation here. It is strange to find such a relic among a treasure so stained by blood and crime.

"And now I have to think about moving the gold. First of all I must get the chest itself aboard the Island Queen. This means that I shall have to empty it and leave the gold in the cave, while I get the chest out by sea. When the chest is safely in the cabin of the sloop—where it won't leave much room for Benjy and his master, I'm afraid—I will take the bags of coin out by the land entrance. I can't think of risking my precious doubloons in the voyage around the point.

"Of course I should have liked to get to the task today, but after the first mad thrill of the great event was over, I found myself as weak and unnerved as a woman. So by a great effort I came away and left my glorious golden hoard. Now I dream and gloat, playing with the idea that tomorrow I shall find it all a fantasy. The pleasure of this is, of course, that all the while I know this wildest of all Arabian fairy tales to be as real as the most drab and sober fact of my hitherto colorless life.

"After all, on the way back from the cave Benjy brought down a pig. So he is as well pleased with the day as I am. Now I am sitting in the doorway of my cabin, writing up my journal, and trying to calm down enough to go to bed. If it were not for the swift fading of daylight, I would go back to the cave for another peep into the chest. But all round the island the sea is moaning with that peculiarly melancholy note that comes with the falling of night. The sea-birds have risen from the cove and gone wheeling off in troops to their nests on the cliffs. Somehow a curious dislike, almost fear, of this wild, sea-girt, solitary place has come over me. I long for the sound of human voices, the touch of human hands. I think of the dead man lying there at the door of the cave, its silent guardian for so long. I suppose he brooded once on the thought of the gold as I do—perhaps he has been brooding so these ninety years! I wonder if he is pleased that I, a stranger, have come into possession of his secret hoard at last?

"Oh, Helen, rich your heavenly face on me—be my refuge from these clouddering unwholesome thoughts! The gold is for you—for you! Surely that must cleanse it of its stains, must loose the clutch of the dead hands that strive to hold it!

"February 11. This morning I was early at the cave. Yes, there it was, the same wonderful chest that I had dreamed of all night long. It was absurd how the lightness in my heart waned.

WORK AT HOME

While as a nation we believe it a duty to give aid to backward peoples giving a government to the Philippines and sending missionaries to all parts of the earth, we have disadvantaged peoples right at home. Among them are the inhabitants if the Blue Ridge and Cumberland ranges of mountains in Kentucky and Tennessee. The condition of these people, of the purest blood in America, has excited sympathy and much has been done to lift them out of their century old environment, but much remains to be done.

President Hutchins of Berea College an institution that has carried much light to the mountains, says there are 3,000,000 of these backward people on the slopes and in the valleys of the Southern Highlands. The ancestors of these people went into the mountains through poverty or exploration and the hills have held them ever since at about the same level. There are no roads worthy of the name, the soil is not capable of producing enough to give proper support to a family and markets cannot be reached. The result is poor people, poor schools, poor churches. However, many of the industries of other days survive there. Spinning and weaving are carried on generally and the thought and habits are those of the long ago. By many of deeply religious nature moonshining is to be an honorable occupation. The fact that moonshine brings $16 to $30 a quart and is the main means of commanding money doubtless contributes to the belief in its defensibleness.

This situation is of concern not alone to the states that claim these people as citizens. It is a problem for the whole country. People who do not progress go backward. No doubt our bad exhibit as a nation in illiteracy is augmented by these people. They are of good stock but have succumbed to environment and it is among such that blood feuds exist, though possibly they do not prevail with the intensity of other days. An infection on one member is of influence on the whole body. It might be well for us to give a bit less attention to the backward peoples on the far side of the earth and take a little more interest in lifting out of ignorance and the seclusion of the hills some of our own people who need help to reach the average of American intelligence.

BEWARE

Secretary of commerce Hoover is said to be giving some attention to the offering of foreign municipal securities to investors in this country, with the view to obtaining evidence of violation of "blue sky" laws. He is quoted as saying that American investors should "exercise the utmost care in their selection of foreign securities." This advice applies to all kinds of investments, foreign and domestic, recent proof of which is being furnished by the investigation into the operations of a band of alleged swindlers with headquarters in Chicago. The axiom, caveat emptor—"let the buyer beware"—should not be ignored in the purchase of securities as well as real estate or commodities.

The only attraction of foreign municipal securities for the average American investor is the high rate of interest at which they are offered. Realization of this rate is dependent upon two factors, concerning which even adepts in international finance find it difficult to form a sound judgment. One is the market value of foreign exchange at the time payment is made of principal and interest, and the other is the ability of the European municipality to meet its obligations at maturity. This ability, in turn, is dependent upon political developments, which in the existing chaotic state of affairs abroad cannot be safely forecast. It is probable, however, that nine-tenths of ventures in foreign bonds, like the purchases of German marks and Russian rubles during and since the war, are of a purely speculative nature, instead of an investment undertaking.

Invariably the rate of yield on a stock or bond is a measure of the safety or principal of the investment. If the yield on market value runs as high as 10 per cent or more it signifies uncertainty concerning interest or principal, or both. The exception occurs in times of great financial stress, when the owner of a perfectly good stock or bond is compelled through necessity to sacrifice it to obtain ready cash. People who buy foreign securities on a basis to net a much higher return than that available in the market for American securities are taking a big chance, and knowing this it not clear that they should become wards of the government in their financial undertakings.

wald C. Barber, 17 years old, is also a volunteer in the Marine Corps, being now stationed at Paris Island, S. Car. His uncle, Raymond Barber, died of bronchial pneumonia in France a month before the armistice was signed.

The past few years of the life of Mr. Barber, the boy's father, have been years of tragedy. In six months he lost a son and a brother in the service and his father through illness. Shortly before his mother was killed when run down by an automobile in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Barber is well known in the community, having been born and brought up at Rudolph. She is a daughter of the late "Bat" Sharkey and a sister of Mrs. W. J. Berard and David Sharkey, of this city.

FRANCE REJOICES AS BIRTH RATE JUMPS

Paris, Sept. 2—The number of marriages in France has doubled, the number of births increased while fewer deaths are registered in 1920 than in 1913, the last full year of peace. This is shown by the official figures just published by the Ministry of Labor. The excess of births over deaths in 1920 was 159,790, as compared to 58,914 in 1913. The marriages totalled 623,869 in 1920 against 312,036 in 1913.

The significance of these figures is increased when it is remembered that the total population of France has decreased sensibly as a result of the war.

ENGLAND'S GREAT ESTATES CRUMBLE UNDER TAX BURDEN

HOLDINGS OF NOBILITY, CENTURIES OLD, ARE BEING SPLIT UP AND SOLD

London.—England's great estates are crumbling under the weight of taxation and death duties and one big landed proprietor after another among the nobility is dividing and selling his holdings, many of which have been in the hands of single families for centuries.

The latest indication that peers are finding it necessary to seek smaller homes comes in the announcement of the Duke of Portland that he may have to abandon his palatial mansion, Welbeck Abbey, in Nottinghampshire. This is only one of the residences of the Duke, who owns some 200,000 acres in England.

"For centuries past landed estates have been handed down from generation to generation," said the Duke, addressing his tenants on the occasion of the coming of age of his son, Lord Francis Cavendish. "Landlords and tenants have lived on terms of mutual trust and affection. I fear however, that the state of things is passing away for with the present weight of taxation and the extremely onerous incidents of death duties, the future may become very uncertain for all landed proprietors. If this is good for the country, I certainly do not complain.

"With regard to my own case, it may or may not be possible for me and my family to continue to reside at Welbeck, but I fear that there can be little doubt that those who come after me will not be able to do so."

New Tenants Come

On all sides historic houses are finding new tenants and ancient families are severing their connection with the soil.

The Duke of Devonshire sold Devonshire House in 1919 and Stowe House, the property of Baroness Kinloss, was disposed of recently.

Others who have sold their properties recently include the Duke of Bedford, the Duke of Westminster, the Duke of Rutland, the Duke of Grafton, the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Lecanfield, Lord Londesborough, Lord Portman, Lord Camden, Marquis de Castegn, Earl Beauchamp, Earl Bradford, Lord Aberdeen, Lord Loval, Lord Harrington, Lord, Harlech, the Countess of Warwick and Sir Richard Bulkeley.

Welbeck Abbey is famous for the subterranean passages and apartments built by the Duke of Portland at a cost of $3,000,000 in order to hide himself from observation by the outside world.

The abbey has an underground riding school 400 feet long, 106 feet wide and 50 feet high, capable of holding 10,000 persons.

There is a subterranean ballroom 155 feet long, 53 feet wide and 21 feet high, the walls of which are hung with famous paintings.

Both the riding school and the ballroom are conected with the abbey by a series of tunnels.

Other features are large subterranean libraries and a tan bark course for galloping horses. It is a quarter of a mile long entirely covered in with glass. Altogether there are about 15 miles of tunnelling.

U. S.-BULGARIA TRADE MAKES GREAT STRIDES

Sofia, Bulgaria—Business between Bulgaria and the United States has made great strides recently in spite of the depreciation of Bulgarian money. Petroleum leads in Bulgarian-American commerce, American oil practically monopolizing the Bulgarian market.

Construction by Americans of grain elevators on Black Sea and in ports of the Danube at a cost of several millions dollars, is the first step in a program providing for the erection of central electric plants and construction of electric railroads, ports and docks.

The Bulgarian government is negotiating for the purchase of railroad rolling stock in the United States, particularly grain cars to facilitate the exportation of cereals.

BELFAST DEATH TOLL FOR WEEK REACHES 18

(By Associated Press)

Belfast, Sept. 2—With the death today of a 15 year old boy and the death of a man, wounded in street fighting last night, the week's casualties have grown to 18. Several cases of assault to do great harm were reported today although the city is reported quiet in most of the outlying districts.

London, Sept. 2—Lloyd George today sent the latest reply from the Irish leaders in regard to the Irish peace proposals to London for circulation among the members of the cabinet. Owing to the belief that many serious issues involved in the latest communications need the cabinet's vote, Lloyd George has called a meeting of the cabinet for next Wednesday. The meeting will be held at Inverness, Scotland.

BROOKLYN BEAUTIES DYE SUNBURNT LASHES

New York, Sept. 2—Getting sunburnt eyelashes dyed dark while you wait is the latest trick of Brooklyn girls. A beauty parlor near Borough Hall which does the job in 15 minutes for 50 cents is doing a sure fire business "giving settings to the eyes."

The proprietress, whose method is to drop a white and then an amber fluid on the sun-bleached lashes, declared Egyptians had used the system and that the French had followed it.

And it was hinted, certain men also ruled by vanity, dropped into the shop to have their lashes revarnished.

Veteran of Civil War Still Hale and Hearty

GEORGE D. SHAW, Springfield, Mass.

"To say that I feel twenty-five years younger, twenty-five years healthier and twenty-five years stronger expresses what Tanlac has done for me better than any other way I can put it," said George D. Shaw, veteran of the Civil War, who now lives at 321 Walnut street, Springfield, Miss.

"I am now seventy-eight years old and I don't hesitate to say I have never known a medicine to equal Tanlac. For fifteen years I was subject to attacks of indigestion that were so bad at times I would have to lay up for a week or so. For a long time I lived on crackers and milk alone as nothing else agreed with me.

"When I started on Tanlac I weighed only one hundred and seventeen pounds and my days were thought to be numbered. I've been so wonderfully built up, I now weigh one hundred and forty-three pounds and my stomach is as sound as a dollar. In fact, I believe I could eat the old army rations again without it hurting me in the least.

"I never miss a chance of saying a good word for Tanlac and I would like to urge the boys of the "Sixties" who are not feeling right to give it a trial, for I am sure it would put them in line again just as it has me. For a man of my age to have no physical ailment, to be well and strong and enjoy life as he did twenty-five years ago, is certainly something to be thankful for and there is nothing too good I can say for Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Wisconsin Rapids by all leading druggists.—Advertisement.

EXCEPTIONAL PHOTOPLAY HOLDING FORTH AT PALACE THEATER THIS WEEK

Again Mary Pickford has triumphed! "Through the Back Door," her newest film vehicle came to the Palace for tonight and tomorrow night and with it comes all the merriment and also all the pathos that have put this little artist on the topmost rung of the ladder of fame.

In this film we see Mary Pickford as a little girl again. And without question, she is a better little girl in this piece than in any of her previous offerings, which is saying a lot. When the picture opens, a child four years old is doubling for Miss Pickford, but about the time the first reel is finished Little Mary assumes the role. We see her first as a little girl about ten, but when the picture ends she has grown to be quite a young lady and has a wonderful dress-up part.

The story starts at Ostend, Belgium. Miss Pickford as Jeanne Bodamere has a mother who falls in love with Elton Reeves, a wealthy New Yorker. A whirlwind courtship results in their marriage. Little Jeanne, whom the new daddy regards as considerable of a nuisance, is left with her faithful nurse, Marie, who marries a Belgian farmer and settles down to rural life near Mons.

Here little Jeanne grows up, and the comical things she does during her childhood keep the audience in a roar of laughter. There is a performing donkey that Miss Pickford rides; hitched to a Belgian cart is a dog chasing a cat; also an episode where "America's Sweetheart" scrubs the floor with brushes on her feet; in fact every move she makes provokes laughter. Then at the end of five years her mother returns to take her away from the faithful old nurse who has come to love the child as her very own. Thus in the midst of the comic does the tragic appear. Probably no more appealing picture has ever been made than this; certainly none with more touching scenes or that is more human. If there was ever any doubt as to Mary Pickford's standing, "Through the Back Door" certainly re-established her in a position of pre-eminence.

WANT FINLAND TO JOIN BALTIC UNION

OBJECT IS TO CREATE A MILITARY FRONT FROM ARTIC TO THE BLACK SEA TO OPPOSE RED INVASIONS

Riga, Latvia—Efforts are now under way to induce Finland to join the Baltic Union, which became an accomplished fact with the signing of various conventions leading to a triple alliance of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

In diplomatic circles here the signing of these conventions is considered as a great step toward the potential formation of a united military front from the Artic to the Black Sea against any aggression from Soviet Russia.

Poland May Enter

Latvia and Esthonia are understood to have signed already a military convention. Lithuania has not yet been included in this but is expected to be shortly. Fear that Poland, which is expected to be in the union later, might object to any immediate inclusion of Lithuania in the military convention, until the Vilna dispute between Lithuania and Poland is settled, deterred Latvia and Esthonia from admitting Lithuania at this time. The latter country, however, through her foreign minister, Doctor Puritsky, is understood to have given assurances that Lithuania will stand with the other two nations on any political question of importance.

Trade, railway and ther conventions already signed or about to be signed include all three countries.

None of these Baltic states fears any immediate aggression from Russia. Their statesmen, however, consider the Russian situation so full of possibilities that they desire to take no chances, some of them have admitted privately to the correspondent.

Russia Endangers Countries

In their fight for political and economic stability, toward which they are making rapid progress, these little republics constantly have before them the spectre of danger were Lenine's regime in Russia either to crumble into anarchy or be succeeded by some government determined to include in a united Russia all of the little peoples who have broken away and form independent governments.

There statesmen consider the formation of the triple alliance a fairly adequate safeguard against any of these eventualities. The protection would be stronger, they say, were Finland and Poland and possibly Rumania included, but they declare they have at least made a spendid start.

One of the participants in the conferences of the three nations said: "It is natural that this union can have no offensive aim, but the cordial relations of the unions' members prove and testify its safety and security. The great powers will now have to reckon seriously with this entente."

One of the Riga newspapers characterizes the Baltic Entente as "a chain of states standing between the two main revolutionary countries—Germany and Russia—destined to play the role of frontier guards between Europe and Asia."

First—The United States would recognize the Japanese mandate over the island.

Third—The cable connecting Japan, Yap and Menado (Holland) would be settled on a basis of recognition of Holland's rights therein.

EX-CITY TREASURER OF MENASHA DIES

Menasha, Wis.—Stafford S. Little, for 25 years city treasurer here, died at Pasadena, Cal., at the age of 55 years. He leaves a wife, son and two daughters. The body is to be brought back here for burial.

Mother's Cook Book

The wisest pilgrim is the one who goes
Along the highway, hour by hour content,
To take the rain or shine the skies have sent;
Who counts his riches in each budded rose;
Each song the thrush through vernal branches throws;
Each marvel of the sunrise; each dusk bent
Of mystery and fragrant sacrament;
Each star that in the heaven burns and glows.

PALATABLE DISHES.

A HANDFUL of green onions, a cupful of cooked rice, a cupful of thick white sauce, a cold hard-cooked egg and a little cheese may make a very palatable luncheon dish. Cook the tender young onions until well done; drain. Butter a small baking dish and put in the rice, cover with the drained onions, add a sprinkling of grated cheese the white sauce and bake until bubbling hot. Serve from the dish. The rice should be well seasoned with butter, or with a chicken broth while it is cooking.

Banana Cream.

Slice three ripe bananas, press through a sieve, add a small box of crushed strawberries, reserving part of the juice; beat together lightly and set on ice to cool. Serve in glass cups with whipped cream to which has been added the reserved strawberry juice. Serve very cold.

During the hot weather the simple and less expensive desserts appeal to the housewife. Frozen dishes, when prepared at home, are always acceptable and cost very little.

Lemon Sherbet.

Take three lemons, two cupfuls of sugar and a quart of rich milk. Mix the sugar and lemon juice, add a grated rind if desired, then stir in the milk. The mixture will curdle but when frozen will be smooth and very palatable. Serve in sherbet glasses.

American League

Chicago—That a little added money is a splendid incentive to make professional ball players hustle was demonstrated again yesterday at Comisky park, when the St. Louis Browns copped from the White Sox, 5 to 0. The Browns are after third place because third place teams in the major leagues will cut in for a slice of the world's series gate, probably amounting to as much as $1,000 per man.

New York—The New York Americans regained the lead in the American league race on Thursday by defeating Washington twice, 6 to 5 and 8 to 1. Washington now has lost seven out of eight games.

In the first game Shawkey was effective in nearly every inning, while New York bunched its hits on Mogridge. Meusel hit his seventeenth home run of the season with Ruth on base.

In the second game Harper started his first game since May, when he had his left hand split by a pitched ball and performed brilliantly. New York won off Johnson in the fourth inning, hitting five successive singles before a man was out.

Boston—Philadelphia took the first game of the series from Boston, 4 to 2, on Thursday. Rommel had slightly the better of Jones and had splendid support.

Detroit—Detroit hit opportunely on Thursday and defeated Cleveland, 7 to 6, in twelve innings. Coveleskie and O'Neill were hit freely early in the game, causing their retirement.

National League

Pittsburg—St. Louis took both games of Thursday's double header from Pittsburg, 10 to 4 and 8 to 0. Perlica kept the hits of the locals scattered in the first game while Sherdel was invincible in the second.

Brooklyn—Brooklyn defeated New York 5 to 1 on Thursday and prevented the Giants from taking advantage of Pittsburg's double defeat. Three of the six hits made off Grimes came in the fifth inning, when the Superbas retired the side on a triple play. After Meusel, Rawlings and Snyder had singled in succession, Johnston caught Pinch Hitter Smith's line drive, doubled Meusel at third and threw to Olson, who tagged Rawlings returning to second.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Lee Meadows blanked Boston, 1 to 0, today, and the defeat put the Braves out of third place.

American Association

Milwaukee—It was a hard fight but the Brewers finally succeeded in reaching their apparent objective, the other side of the standings. They changed places with Fred Luderus' Toledo Mudhens on Thursday, going into fifth place, while the Hens jumped in among the first four. This was made possible by the 10 to 2 drubbing handed the locals by the representatives of the Ohio city in the final game of the series, making it four in a row for the invaders.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Louisville came from behind to win the last game of the series on Thursday, 5 to 4, overcoming a three run lead plied up by the Millers in the second inning. Reb Russell, working again as a pitcher, finished the game and wild pitched the winning run in after Fisher had booted a ball in the double play groove. The victory again put the Colonels four full games in the lead.

HIT TAPE FIRST

Earl Eby, the great Penn miler, hasn't any patience with a fellow who devotes the most of his thinking to the time record, instead of winning the race.

"Give me the runner who can win the race," says Eby. "Time is a secondary matter. Beat the other fellow to the tape and you have accomplished the real purpose of any race."

Running against time is not sport.

Racing is competition between individuals. If you beat the other fellow, the time takes care of itself.

OUTFIELD RECORD FOR RICE

Washington Player Handled 478 Chances Last Season—Max Carey of Pirates Displaced.

Sam Rice, star outfielder for the Washington Nationals, set a record in major league history last season when he handled 478 chances in the outfield.

Sam Rice.

Tris Speaker, Cleveland boss, was the first to achieve a record number of accepted chances in the outfield, then Max Carey, the Pirate preacher and outfielder, exceeded Spoke's mark, and now Rice holds the record.

HITTING KEEPS CROWD BACK

League Officials Find That General Lambasting of Ball Is Holding Attendance Down.

National league umpires are now doctoring the baseball instead of the pitchers. They're experimenting with a new chemical to take the shine off the ball. The new dope has the same effect as rosin, only it isn't as sticky.

League officials once stormed about pitchers using dope on the ball. Then, when they found that the general lambasting of the ball had hurt attendance, they rushed to the rescue.

FIELDING MARK IS EQUALLED

Third Baseman Schepner of Louisville Team Accepted Thirteen Chances Without Slip.

When Joe Schepner, third baseman of the Louisville American Association club, accepted thirteen chances without error in a recent game with St. Paul sport writers declared he equaled the major league record held by third basemen, which was made by George Cutshaw, of the Brooklyn Nationals, on August 23, 1913.

Fred Mitchell often has urged the establishment of a baseball school, but most of the ball players know more than their teachers. So what's the use?

Max Carey, the fleet-footed Pittsburgh outfielder, and Frank Frisch of New York are having a neck and neck race for stolen base honors in the National league.

Nelson Pott, college infielder sent by the Cleveland club some time since to Houston of the Texas league, has been transferred to Des Moines of the Western league.

truck, driven by L. Loiselle, the fire soon was making a losing fight and by seven o'clock it was thought safe to allow the Marshfield department to return home. Nepco officials were loud in their praise of Mayor Campbell and Fire Chief Finney of Marshfield, who generously offered their services when called by mill officials.

Mayor Briere, Chief Payne, who handled the traffic, Fire Chief Miller, and members of the department and others from Nekoosa and Wisconsin Rapids were praised by the Nepco company for their services in checking the fire. The White City Cafeteria also came in for praise from both the fire fighters and company officials as they supplied sandwiches and coffee throughout the night, making the work of the men much easier.

RED MISSION AT ANGORA IS OBJECT OF TURK CURIOSITY

FEW RUSSIANS LIVE IN THAT LOCALITY; TURKS WONDER WHEN THE TERRIBLE REDS DO ALL THEIR KILLING

Angora—The Bolshevik mission at Angora, headed by Serge Natzarenouss as plenipotentiary, is just as much an object of curiosity as it would be in Washington. There are but few Russian Bolsheviki in Turkey and the Turkish population observes them closely to see if they wear red clothes and horn sand massacre people before or after brekfast.

The Bolshevik mission, which arrived from Moscow, in late June, composed of a half dozen men and a dozen or more women secretaries and typists, is established in a residence just under the walls of the ancient city. Over it flies a red flag bearing the insignia of Soviet Russia. Stretched across the street is a huge red banner on which is inscribed in Turkish letters: "Down with Imperialism and Capitalism."

Few Red Soldiers

In an adjoining house are a few Bolshevik soldiers, but otherwise there is no pretence at attracting attention.

Natzarenouss is a former lawyer of Saratov, who says his socialistic tendencies caused the government of the Czar to deport him in 1911 for a six months' imprisonment in Siberia. At different periods in the past three years he was commander of the Bolsherik forces on the Archangel front. He is a short, alert, polite man, neatly dressed, and a smoker of initialed cigarettes contained in a highly ornamented gold case.

"I am here because of our treaty with the Turks," he explained. "There is no secret treaty. The only one is the drawn March 16 in Moscow. By it Kars goes to the Turks and they now ocupy it despite reports to the contrary. The treaty is founded on our common revolutionary interests, and both of us are bound not to recognize any international treaty imposed on the other against its will.

"By it we also accognize the right of the Turks to Constantinople and it is nonsense to say we are trying to capture that city. It is also provided that a future conference of interested nations shall regulae the free passage of the Dardanelles straits and the commerce of the Black Sea, and in such manner as not to infringe on the absolute sovereignty and security of the Turks at Constantinople.

"Article four recognizes the similarity of the struggle of the peoples of the Orient for national freedom with the struggle of the workers of Russia for a new social order and to both the right to govern themselves as they wish.

Turks Between Fires

"The Turks are equally afraid of ourselves and the Allies and are trying to prevent any infringement on their independene by either."

Asked why at the present time, there was so much fear in Europe of a new Soviet invasion of Poland and Rumania, he answered: "That is the propaganda against us. So far as I know, we have [illegible] such intentions. We wish to be friendly with all nations. We are trying to establish a responsible government that can reopen commercial relations, especially are we anxious to do so with the United States. We realize that with a responsible government we can get long credits and rebuild Russia.

"We should like to see the long line of ships repassing the Dardanelles, arrying freight to an dfrom South Russia, as in pre-war days.

"It is not easy for us to form a stabe, responsible government under present conditions, with armed bands plundering in the country districts, yet if we can once get people back to work, as would be the case if import and export business started, the task will be far easier."

The Kalamazoo club has sold Pitcher William (Red) Collins to Toledo, where he joins his battery mate, Alex Schauffel. He had a good record last year, but could not win at Kalamazoo this season.

Charley (Rube) Lutzke, sent by Indianapolis to a club in the Three-I league, which turned him back after a brief trial, was then taken on by Kansas City and Manager Otto Knabe has been using him at short as a stop gap.

The Cincinnati club is trying out two infielders just out of college. One is Coons, a shortstop, of the University of Cincinnati, and the other Johnson, a third baseman, who comes from the North Carolina State college.

SCOUTING A WORTH-WHILE JOB.

E. K. Willow of Philadelphia, a ten-year scout man, says:

"It has been a great pleasure to be associated in scout work through these past ten years. Whatever it may have meant to the boys it has meant a great deal to me. The seven years when I was actively engaged with the different groups of boys as scoutmaster have brought a great deal of pleasure to me. If every man could come in contact with boys thus intimately he would find it helpful in many ways even though it takes time and means the sacrifice of things men hold dear.

"After the experience of these ten years in connection with work for boys I am convinced that there is no better program for character building than the scout program and I hope that I may have a hand in it for years to come."

SCOUTS LOCATE STOLEN CAR.

The new plan whereby police reports are sent broadcast by wireless every evening had an immediate, interesting and worthwhile result. On a certain evening a large amount of police data and reports were relayed to the high power radio station of the American Radio and Research corporation in Medford, Mass., and hurled through the air in a 100-mile radius for the information of some 5,000 amateur operators. Among the items reported were the number, make, engine, etc., of a car which had been stolen from Harvard square, Cambridge, the day before. Among the "listeners in" was a boy scout named Barney, who wrote down the details of the theft, for practice in receiving. The next day, walking along the street in his home town, the lad noticed a car standing deserted by the roadside which was of the make of the stolen roadster. He made a quick, mental note of the number and ran home to compare it with his radio notes. The two tallied and he at once telephoned the police and the car was restored to its owner.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old spinster—but never too old to think of marriage—with more money than brains, is inveigled by a strong-minded spinster, Miss Higglesby-Browne, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leeward Island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, sets on the vessel engaged for the hunt, and in the confusion is unwillingly carried along.

CHAPTER II.—By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane, and is somewhat impressed.

CHAPTER III.—Talking with Dugald Shaw, the leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady "financier," Hamilton H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Miss Jane Harding. Their relations, naturally, are somewhat strained.

CHAPTER IV.—Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty, Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane, to her disquietude. The landing, however, is safely effected.

CHAPTER V.—Led by Miss Higglesby-Browne, the party draws up an agreement whereby Virginia Harding is barred from participation in the profits of the expedition. Believing the whole thing to be a fraud, Virginia is not greatly worried. Cuthbert Vane alone votes against the exclusion of Virginia.

CHAPTER VI.—Wild pigs abound on the island, and "Cookie," the colored member of the party, insists he has seen a "hant," in the form of a white pig. During a walk Virginia meets the "hant," a white bull terrier, and proudly brings him into camp.

CHAPTER VII.—On the island is the hut of a copra gatherer, and the presence of the dog, named "Crusoe" by Virginia, is thus accounted for. Rambling about, and feeling herself not to be a regular member of the expedition, Virginia comes upon a sand-imbedded sloop, the Island Queen. Returning to the camp, she is intercepted by Captain Magnus, who accosts her unpleasantly. She escapes him, with the aid of "Crusoe."

CHAPTER VIII.—Fired with the idea of herself discovering the treasure, Virginia pays a visit to the cave which has been singled out as the most likely place in which it has been concealed, and there she is caught by the tide and rescued by Dugald Shaw, from certain death. Thinking her unconscious, Shaw whispers words of endearment, which she treasures.

CHAPTER IX.—In idle curiosity Virginia, dabbling about the wreck of the Island Queen, finds a diary, identified only as having been kept by "Peter," a former seeker of the treasure. In it he tells of his finding of the hidden wealth and there her reading is interrupted.

CHAPTER X.—Opinions as to the proper methods of prosecuting the search for the treasure are divided, and a wide divergence is apparent in the councils of the little party. Virginia's interest in the leader of the expedition increases.

"Brought back to earth and sanity, I rose and began to consider my surroundings. Somewhere close at hand was the mouth of the cave—but where? The cliffs, as I have already said, were too steep for descent. Nothing but a fly could have crawled down them. I turned to the craggy face of the mountain. There, surely, must be the entrance to the cave! For hours I clambered among the rocks, risking mangled limbs and sunstroke—and found no cave. I came back at last, wearily, to the grave. There lay the dust of the brain that had known all—and a wild impulse came to me to tear away the earth with my bare hands, to dig deep, deep—and then with listening ear wait for a whispered word.

"I put the delirious fancy from me and moved away to the edge of the cliffs. Looking down, I saw a narrow sloping shelf which dropped from the brink to a distance of ten or twelve feet below, where it met a slight projection of the rock. I had seen it before, of course, but it had carried no significance for my mind. Now I stepped down upon the ledge and followed it to its end in the angle of the rock.

"Snugly hidden in the angle was a low doorway leading into blackness.

"Now, of course, I ought in prudence to have gone back to the hut and got matches and a lantern and a rope before I set foot in the darkness of that unknown place. But what had I to do today with prudence—Fortune had me by the hand! So I went boldly, Benjy at my heels. The passage turned sharply, and for a little way we walked in blackness. Then it veered again, and a faint and far-off light seemed to filter its way to us through a web woven of the very stuff of night. The floor sloped a little downward. I felt my way with my feet, and came to a step—another. I was going along a descending passage, cut at its steepest into rough, irregular stairs. With either hand I could touch the walls. All the while the light grew clearer. Presently, by another sharp turn, I found myself in a cave, some thirty feet in depth by eighteen across, with an opening on the narrow strip of beach I had seen from the top of the cliffs.

"The roof is high, with an effect of Gothic arches. Near the mouth is a tiny spring of ice-cold water, which has worn a clean rock channel for itself to the sea. Otherwise the cave is perfectly dry. There is no doubt in my mind that in the great buccaneering days of the Seventeenth century, and probably much later, the place was the haunt of pirates. The fancies that Captain Sampson of the Bonny Lass may have known of it before he brought the treasure to the island. There were queer folk to be met with in those days in the western ocean. Yes, the cave has seen many a fierce, sea-tanned face and tarry pigtail, and echoed to strange oaths and wild seasongs. Men had carved those steps in the passage—thirty-two of them. In the sand of the floor, as I kicked it up with my feet, hoping rather childishly to strike the corner of the chest, I found the hilt and part of the blade of a rusty cutlass, and a clased silver shoe-buckle. I shall take the buckle home to Helen—and yet how trivial it will seem, with all else that I have to offer her! Nevertheless, she will prize it as my gift, and because it comes from the place to which some kind angel led me for her sake.

"I left the cave and hurried back to the cabin for a spade, walking on air, breaking with snatches of song the terrible stillness of the woods, where one hears only the high lilting sighing of the wind, or the eternal mutter of the sea.

"Back in the cave, I set to work feverishly, making the light sand fly. At the end of half an hour, at a point close to the angle of the wall my spade struck a hard surface. It lay, I should judge, under about two feet of sand. Soon I had laid bare a patch of dark wood which rang under my knuckles almost like iron. A little more, and I had cleared away the sand from the top of a large chest with a convex lid, heavily bound in brass.

"Furiously I flung the sand aside until the chest stood free for half its depth—which is roughly three feet. It has handles at the ends, great hand-wrought loops of metal. I tugged my hardest, but the chest seemed fast in its place as the native rock. I laughed exultantly. The weight meant gold—gold! I had hammer and chisel with me, and with these I forced the massive ancient locks. There were three of them, one for each strip of brass which bound the chest. Then I flung up the lid.

"No glittering treasure dazzled me. I saw only a surface of stained canvas, tucked in carefully around the edges. This I tore off and flung aside—eclipsing poor Benjy, who was a most interested spectator of my strange proceedings. Still no gleam of gold, merely denser rows of plump brown bags. With both hands I reached for them. Oh, to grasp them all! I had to be content with two, because they were so heavy, so blessedly heavy!

"I spread the square of canvas on the sand, cut the strings from the bags and poured out—gold, gold! All fair shining golden coins they were, not a paltry silver piece among them! And they made a soft golden music as they fell in a glorious yellow heap.

"I don't know how long I sat there, playing with my gold, running it through my fingers, clinking the coins together in my palm. Benjy came and sniffed at them indifferently, unable to understand his master's preoccupation. He thrust his nose into my face and barked, and said as clearly as with words, 'Come, hunt pig!'

"'Benjy,' I said, 'we'll leave the pork alone just now. We have work enough to count our money. We're rich, old boy, rich, rich!'

"Of course, I don't yet know exactly what the value of the treasure is. I have counted the bags in the chest; there are one hundred and forty-eight. Each, so far as I have determined, contains one thousand doubloons, which makes a total of one hundred and forty-eight thousand. Estimating each coin, for the sake of even figures, at a value of seven dollars—a safe minimum—you get one million, thirty-six thousand dollars. And as many of the coins are ancient I ought to reap a harvest from collectors.

"Besides the coin, I found, rather surprisingly, laid between the upper layers of bags, a silver crucifix about nine inches long. It is of very quaint old workmanship, and badly tarnished. Its money value must be very trifling, compared to the same bulk of golden coins. I think it must have had some special character of sacredness which led to its preservation here. It is strange to find such a relic among a treasure so stained by blood and crime.

"And now I have to think about moving the gold. First of all I must get the chest itself aboard the Island Queen. This means that I shall have to empty it and leave the gold in the cave, while I get the chest out by sea. When the chest is safely in the cabin of the sloop—where it won't leave much room for Benjy and his master, I'm afraid—I will take the bags of coin out by the land entrance. I can't think of risking my precious doubloons in the voyage around the point.

"Of course I should have liked to get to the task today, but after the first mad thrill of the great event was over, I found myself as weak and unnerved as a woman. So by a great effort I came away and left my glorious golden hoard. Now I dream and gloat, playing with the idea that tomorrow I shall find it all a fantasy. The pleasure of this is, of course, that all the while I know this wildest of all Arabian fairy tales to be as real as the most drab and sober fact of my hitherto colorless life.

"After all, on the way back from the cave Benjy brought down a pig. So he is as well pleased with the day as I am. Now I am sitting in the doorway of my cabin, writing up my journal, and trying to calm down enough to go to bed. If it were not for the swift fading of daylight, I would go back to the cave for another peep into the chest. But all round the island the sea is moaning with that peculiarly melancholy note that comes with the falling of night. The sea-birds have risen from the cove and gone wheeling off in troops to their nests on the cliffs. Somehow a curious dislike, almost fear, of this wild, sea-girt, solitary place has come over me. I long for the sound of human voices, the touch of human hands. I think of the dead man lying there at the door of the cave, its silent guardian for so long. I suppose he brooded once on the thought of the gold as I do—perhaps he has been brooding so these ninety years! I wonder if he is pleased that I, a stranger, have come into possession of his secret hoard at last?

"Oh, Helen, turn your heavenly face on me—be my refuge from these shuddering unwholesome thoughts! The gold is for you—for you! Surely that must cleanse it of its stains, must loose the clutch of the dead hands that strive to hold it!

"February 11. This morning I was early at the cave. Yes, there it was, the same wonder-chest that I had dreamed of all night long. It was absurd how the tightness in my breast relaxed.

EXCEPTIONAL PHOTOPLAY HOLDING FORTH AT PALACE THEATER THIS WEEK

Again Mary Pickford has triumphed! "Through the Back Door," her newest film vehicle came to the Palace for tonight and tomorrow night and with it comes all the merriment and also all the pathos that have put this little artist on the topmost rung of the ladder of fame.

In this film we see Mary Pickford as a little girl again. And without question, she is a better little girl in this piece than in any of her previous offerings, which is saying a lot. When the picture opens, a child four years old is doubling for Miss Pickford, but about the time the first reel is finished Little Mary assumes the role. We see her first as a little girl about ten, but when the picture ends she has grown to be quite a young lady and has a wonderful dress-up part.

The story starts at Ostend, Belgium. Miss Pickford as Jeanne Bodamere has a mother who falls in love with Elton Reeves, a wealthy New Yorker. A whirlwind courtship results in their marriage. Little Jeanne, whom the new daddy regards as considerable of a nuisance, is left with her faithful nurse, Marie, who marries a Belgian farmer and settles down to rural life near Mons.

Here little Jeanne grows up, and the comical things she does during her childhood keep the audience in a roar of laughter. There is a performing donkey that Miss Pickford rides; hitched to a Belgian cart is a dog chasing a cat; also an episode where "America's Sweetheart" scrubs the floor with brushes on her feet; in fact every move she makes provokes laughter. Then at the end of five years her mother returns to take her away from the faithful old nurse who has come to love the child as her very own. Thus in the midst of the comic does the tragic appear. Probably no more appealing picture has ever been made than this; certainly none with more touching scenes or that is more human. If there was ever any doubt as to Mary Pickford's standing, "Through the Back Door" certainly re-established her in a position of pre-eminence.

I'M TIRED

Once upon a time, two days ago, a man asked me for a cigarette and I offered him the last Camel in the office and he refused it because of his superstitions, the damphool. Such superstitions make me tired. There are many things that make me tired. For example:

"CON" FAINTS ON HIS TROLLEY CAR

"I was so weak that I fainted several times and had to be carried off my car," said Ed. Cummings, street car conductor, 390 4th street, Milwaukee. "In fact for 3 years I doctored constantly for severe headaches, loss of appetite, stomach trouble and constipation but not until I took Kozak did I regain my health.

"Yes sir, Kozak fixed me up! I can now eat twice as much as before, my food digests right and I sleep like a top. I have no more bowel trouble and have gained in strength and energy. American League

Chicago—That a little added money is a splendid incentive to make professional ball players hustle was demonstrated again yesterday at Comiskey park, when the St. Louis Browns copped from the White Sox, 5 to 0. The Browns are after third place because third place teams in the major leagues will cut in for a slice of the world's series gate, probably amounting to as much as $1,000 per man.

New York—The New York Americans regained the lead in the American league race on Thursday by defeating Washington twice, 6 to 3 and 8 to 1. Washington now has lost seven straight games.

In the first game Shawkey was effective in nearly every inning, while New York bunched its hits on Mogridge. Meusel hit his seventeenth home run of the season with Ruth on base.

In the second game Harper started his first game since May, when he had his left hand split by a pitched ball and performed brilliantly. New York won off Johnson in the fourth inning, hitting five successive singles before a man was out.

Boston—Philadelphia took the first game of the series from Boston, 4 to 2, on Thursday. Rommel had slightly the better of Jones and had splendid support.

Detroit—Detroit hit opportunely on Thursday and defeated Cleveland, 7 to 6, in twelve innings. Coveleskie and Oldham were hit freely early in the game, causing their retirement.

National League

Pittsburg—St. Louis took both games of Thursday's double header from Pittsburg, 10 to 4 and 8 to 0. Pertica kept the hits of the locals scattered in the first game while Sherdel was invincible in the second.

Brooklyn—Brooklyn defeated New York 5 to 1 on Thursday and prevented the Giants frm taking advantage of Pittsburg's double defeat. Three of the six hits made off Grimes came in the fifth inning, when the Superbas retired the side on a triple play. After Meusel, Rawlings and Snyder had singled in succession, Johnston caught Pinch Hitter Smith's line drive, doubled Meusel at third and threw to Olson, who tagged Rawlings returning to second.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Lee Meadows blanked Boston, 1 to 0, today, and the defeat put the Braves out of third place.

American Association

Milwaukee—It was a hard fight but the Brewers finally succeeded in reaching their apparent objective, the other side of the standings. They changed places with Fred Luderus' Toledo Mudhens on Thursday, going into fifth place, while the Hens jumped in among the first four. This was made possible by the 10 to 2 drubbing handed the locals by the representatives of the Ohio city in the final game of the series, making it four in a row for the invaders.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Louisville came from behind to win the last game of the series on Thursday, 5 to 4, overcoming a three run lead plied up by the Millers in the second inning. Reb Russell, working again as a pitcher, finished the game and wild pitched the winning run in after Fisher had booted a ball in the double play groove. The victory again put the Colonels four full games in the lead.

HIT TAPE FIRST

Earl Eby, the great Penn miler, hasn't any patience with a fellow who devotes the most of his thinking to the time record, instead of winning the race.

"Give me the runner who can win the race," says Eby. "Time is a secondary matter. Beat the other fellow to the tape and you have accomplished the real purpose of any race."

Running against time is not sport.

Racing is competition between individuals. If you beat the other fellow, the time takes care of itself.

OUTFIELD RECORD FOR RICE

Washington Player Handled 478 Chances Last Season—Max Carey of Pirates Displaced.

Sam Rice, star outfielder for the Washington Nationals, set a record in major league history last season when he handled 478 chances in the outfield.

Sam Rice.

Tris Speaker, Cleveland boss, was the first to achieve a record number of accepted chances in the outfield, then Max Carey, the Pirate preacher and outfielder, exceeded Spoke's mark, and now Rice holds the record.

HITTING KEEPS CROWD BACK

League Officials Find That General Lambasting of Ball Is Holding Attendance Down.

National league umpires are now doctoring the baseball instead of the pitchers. They're experimenting with a new chemical to take the shine off the ball. The new dope has the same effect as rosin, only it isn't as sticky.

League officials once stormed about pitchers using dope on the ball. Then, when they found that the general lambasting of the ball had hurt attendance, they rushed to the rescue.

FIELDING MARK IS EQUALLED

Third Baseman Schepner of Louisville Team Accepted Thirteen Chances Without Slip.

When Joe Schepner, third baseman of the Louisville American Association club, accepted thirteen chances without error in a recent game with St. Paul sport writers declared he equaled the major league record held by third basemen, which was made by George Cutshaw, of the Brooklyn Nationals, on August 23, 1913.

Fred Mitchell often has urged the establishment of a baseball school, but most of the ball players know more than their teachers. So what's the use?

Max Carey, the fleet-footed Pittsburgh outfielder, and Frank Frisch of New York are having a neck and neck race for stolen base honors in the National league.

Nelson Pott, college infielder sent by the Cleveland club some time since to Houston of the Texas league, has been transferred to Des Moines of the Western league.

truck, driven by L. Loiselle, the fire soon was making a losing fight and by seven o'clock it was thought safe to allow the Marshfield department to return home. Nepco officials were loud in their praise of Mayor Campbell and Fire Chief Finney of Marshfield, who generously offered their services when called by mill officials.

Mayor Briere, Chief Payne, who handled the traffic, Fire Chief Miller, and members of the department and others from Nekoosa and Wisconsin Rapids were praised by the Nepco company for their services in checking the fire. The White City Cafeteria also came in for praise from both the fire fighters and company officials as they supplied sandwiches and coffee throughout the night, making the work of the men much easier.
